

Win Time with Interim Management

It takes time to find the right person for a management position. But time is often in short supply - especially because vacancies in upper management demand quick solutions.

Interim management is one of Consenec's core competences. Our team is made up of experienced managers who can temporarily take on the full responsibility for a company, a business area, or a project. For as long as you need.

More Time for Important Decisions

When interim management makes sense

When there is a vacancy in a key position, or for projects that demand punctual delivery. For instance, in innovation projects, where the time leading to the market launch is the decisive factor. Or when the board of directors and management want to profit from independent expertise.

International projects

Interim management is particularly useful when companies are developing new markets or working on international projects that require knowledge of the local customs. The Consenec team is also active abroad - for example, in China, Greece, Italy, and Germany.

Duration of assignment

Consenec interim managers will stay for a few short weeks or commit to several months - it all depends on the task and situation at hand.

Our qualifications

All members of the Consenec staff are former senior managers at ABB, GE, or Bombardier in Switzerland. They look back on years of experience in various business sectors and in management, and they all have an excellent network - in Switzerland and abroad.

Advantages of interim management

The experienced senior managers at Consenec can be hired quickly, they fill gaps, and are ready to step in where needed. Our team's expertise is particularly useful when businesses experience capacity constraints, where there is a sudden or long-term vacancy, when know-how is lacking, or when a company is implementing a short-term project.
